

TWO MORE BODIES

(Continued from First Page.)

CLOTHING WAS INTACT. It was that of a man about 5 feet 6 inches tall, and weighing about 130 pounds.

The trousers were of dark cloth and the shirt of the ordinary cutting style of white dannel, with blue stripes. A steel comb, some collar buttons and a few pennies were found in the pocket.

Chief Rosenfeld, who examined the body, said he thought it was that of Samuel Blits, though he was not absolutely positive.

The feet were small and well formed, while the boy Dukaravitch had very large feet and wore cheaper clothing.

The dead wagon which arrived shortly after noon brought three more of the pine boxes from the Morgue, and the body was dredged with disinctants, placed in one of the boxes and carried to the street.

THE SECOND TAKEN OUT.

Only the legs and feet of the second body were then visible, but it did not take long to dig it out. Coroner Hanly's assistant, Mr. Lehmann, fastened a rope round its waist and it was dragged out of the small aperture.

The vault was filled with the fumes of benzine in addition to the stench of the putrefying bodies, and it tainted the atmosphere of the whole neighborhood.

Those who were standing about the edge of the excavation retreated in disgust when the corpse was dragged out into the open air.

It was the body of a large and tall man, but all trace of the features had been obliterated. Like that of the first body taken out, there were no indications of burning about it, for the clothing seemed to be perfectly preserved.

When the box was carried up to the street Coroner Hanly's assistant made an examination and discovered in the vest pocket a hunting case silver watch and chain.

NEWMAN GOLDSCHMIDT'S CORPSE.

"That is the body of Newman Goldschmidt," exclaimed Leo Rosenfeld as the watch was brought to light.

"Look on his hand and see if he does not wear a gold seal ring with the initial 'G' on it." Mr. Goldschmidt always wore it," continued Rosenfeld.

The hand was examined, and sure enough there was the ring and the initial "G," and the identification was complete.

A notebook was found in the pocket which was identified as belonging to Goldschmidt.

One body was buried from the Morgue last Saturday by the relatives of Mr. Goldschmidt, who thought they had identified it. It seems that they were mistaken.

THIS MAKES SIXTY-TWO.

This makes sixty-two bodies in all that have been found in the ruins.

Work was stopped and the force of laborers withdrawn at 2 o'clock last Wednesday afternoon.

Only a few laborers have been employed in removing the debris since that day.

Three of these, Frank Wilson, Thomas Cook and Charles Davy, employed by the estate of Rosenthal & Co., the bronze leaf manufacturers, were engaged in searching for the property of that firm in the rubbish.

They were at work near this vault when the Mayor's check blanched at the horrifying discovery.

When Contractor Crimmins withdrew his gang of men from the place Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, he said:

CRIMMINS QUOTED AGAINST CRIMMINS.

"Every shovel of dirt has been turned over, and every inch of ground under the old iron examined, and when I say there are no more bodies in the ruins I know what I am talking about."

There were still missing eight men who were either employed in the building or were in the habit of visiting it. That is, eight more than there were bodies recovered.

AND INSPECTOR WILLIAMS, TOO.

But Inspector Williams said:

"The wreckage has been scattered to the very foundation of the building and we found no traces of any more bodies. I am of opinion that there is not another body in the ruins."

CROWD FLOCK TO THE SCENE.

The news of the finding of these two bodies spread like wildfire, and people flocked to the scene from all directions for there are still six missing persons, and if these two bodies remained undiscovered for nine days, it was thought highly probable that the other four were still buried in the black and grimy wrecks.

Capt. Slevin repaired immediately to the scene with a squad of policemen, and the firehouse was re-established and vigorously maintained.

Whether there are any more bodies in the black hole of the vault is uncertain. There is a lot of rubbish to be cleared away from the entrance of this horrible death chamber, and it is not improbable that the bodies of other victims may be discovered under it.

HAVE ALL NOW BEEN TAKEN OUT?

Capt. Casman, who superintended the clearing of the ruins, and Acting Chief Kelly made their appearance soon after the discovery of the bodies.

The former said that the ceilings of Nos. 72 and 74 had been cleared by the Fire Department, while Mr. Crimmins' gang of laborers had finished up the ceilings of Nos. 68 and 70, where the additional victims were found.

"I was told that there was no vault there," said Capt. Casman, "and the wall seemed to be bricked up solid then. The top of the entrance to the vault, as you may see, is several feet below the level of the sidewalk, and there was such a heap of rubbish there that we did not get down to the bottom of it."

The opinion was freely expressed that a number of other bodies would be found at the bottom of the mass of rubbish which still remains in the cellar of the fallen building.

CRIMMINS HELD RESPONSIBLE.

Up to 10 o'clock no more bodies had been discovered in the ruins, though Capt. Slevin has an idea that there is another one near the spot where the two were taken out early in the afternoon.

A gang of laborers are working at the mass of debris in the cellar of No. 70. Mayor Crimmins has given orders to Contractor Crimmins that he must have the excavation thoroughly cleared out by to-morrow night.

He holds the contractor responsible for neglect in this matter, in reporting that there were no more dead bodies in the wreck and taking his men off before the ruins had been thoroughly explored.

At 4:30 P.M. the laborers at work on the cellar of No. 70 had cleared away the entrance of the street vault, and the place was thoroughly explored by the Coroner's assistant, Mr. Lehmann.

No more bodies could be found, and the authorities were satisfied that the ruins had been so thoroughly searched that there was no chance of further discoveries.

Chief Casman says that the drifts which still remain in the cellar have been hauled twice, and outside of the hitherto unknown vault there is no place where other bodies could be hidden.

Contractor Seaman, who is employed by Mr. Crimmins, the owner of the building, has a gang of thirty men at work with carts removing the rubbish which still remains in the ruins.

PREPARING FOR THE INQUEST.

That May Fix the Blame for the Park Place Disaster.

Coroner Hanly and a jury will tomorrow begin the official inquiry into the cause of the death of the sixty victims of the Park place disaster.

Together with Acting District-Attorney Bedford, the Coroner to-day went over the testimony of witnesses examined in the District-Attorney's office Friday and Saturday, and compared the several lists of witnesses with a view to revising them and getting all the evidence obtainable.

There was no formal examination to-day, but several persons supposed to have known of the condition of the Taylor building were called before Col. Townsend, who will represent the people at the inquest.

Among them were representatives of press manufacturers and workmen who helped to put Liebler & Mair's heavy lithographing presses into position. These will testify as to the weight of the machinery and the apparent condition of the building at the time the presses were set up.

The underwriter's inspector who inspected the building has not yet been found, but Col. Townsend hopes to produce him before the Coroner's jury.

Among the witnesses who have been subpoenaed to testify before the Coroner is James Crain, husband of the owner of the Taylor Building; Sutro & Newmark, John Meyer, George Grunbeck, E. J. Muller, Louis Zweigert, Joseph Bial, William Liebler & Mair, John Schaefer, H. W. Ditzel, William Ditzel, C. C. Shaeffer, Fred G. Irwin, Eugene and Frank Jaeger, James H. Hefty, Frank Morris, Emil Fetzer and Anton H. Salter, and the employees of Liebler & Mair who escaped from the wrecked building.

The second taken out.

Only the legs and feet of the second body were then visible, but it did not take long to dig it out. Coroner Hanly's assistant, Mr. Lehmann, fastened a rope round its waist and it was dragged out of the small aperture.

The vault was filled with the fumes of benzine in addition to the stench of the putrefying bodies, and it tainted the atmosphere of the whole neighborhood.

Those who were standing about the edge of the excavation retreated in disgust when the corpse was dragged out into the open air.

It was the body of a large and tall man, but all trace of the features had been obliterated. Like that of the first body taken out, there were no indications of burning about it, for the clothing seemed to be perfectly preserved.

Most of these have been subjected to a preliminary examination by the District-Attorney, but Col. Townsend has an additional list of persons whose testimony is yet to be secured.

DON'T LIKE THE MUSIC.

Eickhoff Says There Is Too Much Braying About the Disaster.

"What do you think of the resolutions adopted last night by the Central Labor Union?" Fire Commissioner Eickhoff was asked this morning.

"Look on his hand and see if he does not wear a gold seal ring with the initial 'G' on it." Mr. Goldschmidt always wore it," continued Rosenfeld.

The hand was examined, and sure enough there was the ring and the initial "G," and the identification was complete.

A notebook was found in the pocket which was identified as belonging to Goldschmidt.

One body was buried from the Morgue last Saturday by the relatives of Mr. Goldschmidt, who thought they had identified it. It seems that they were mistaken.

THIS MAKES SIXTY-TWO.

This makes sixty-two bodies in all that have been found in the ruins.

Work was stopped and the force of laborers withdrawn at 2 o'clock last Wednesday afternoon.

Only a few laborers have been employed in removing the debris since that day.

Three of these, Frank Wilson, Thomas Cook and Charles Davy, employed by the estate of Rosenthal & Co., the bronze leaf manufacturers, were engaged in searching for the property of that firm in the rubbish.

They were at work near this vault when the Mayor's check blanched at the horrifying discovery.

When Contractor Crimmins withdrew his gang of men from the place Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, he said:

MONEY STILL POURING IN.

Enough Already in Sight to Relieve the Sufferers' Wants.

Mayor's Private Secretary Speer was confronted with an unusual pile of mail matter this morning. It consisted of a mass of letters, nearly every one of which contained money or check contributions to the fund for the relief of sufferers by the Park place disaster.

It is stated that the balance of the funds of the Central Labor Union had been sent to the Park place disaster.

Some members of the committee are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be kept open.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.

Some down-town business men, however, are of the opinion that the fund should be closed soon, as they estimate that with the entertainment under way, quite enough is likely to relieve the suffering.